Tips & Tricks

Know Your Audience

Increase your engagement efforts with students mostly at the time of the year when they're actively seeking jobs, but attempt to remain front of mind the rest of the time with periodic communications.

Think Digital

Head online and learn about your demographic on the platforms they use most — Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, Twitter, YouTube, groups, alumni blogs, online discussion forums, subject/society pages and LinkedIn.

Go Mobile

Make sure your platform is ready to capture students where they spend most of their day — on their phones, and integrates seamlessly with their preferred social media.

CAREER FAIR

Tips & Tricks

Think Ahead

Invite students for short on-site interviews or "get-to-know you" sessions in advance using customized invitations and branded landing pages with interview-scheduling tools. Since students value information sessions, consider hosting these as well as part of your university recruiting strategy to gain more exposure on campus.

Go Paperless

Use the Campus Mobile App at events to capture student data and resumes on-the-go online or offline.

Avoid Long Lines

Demonstrate to students that you value their time by giving them the option to text to apply or scan a QR code to register.

Leverage Event Management Tools

Manage invitations, logistics, venue information, reminders, costs and event marketing all in one platform.

Embrace the Hybrid Trend

A combination of in-person and virtual events can give you the possibility to reach a greater audience of qualified candidates while reducing some of the logistics costs.

LIBRARY

When students research your organization, what do they find?

How do students research career opportunities?

Job sites and employer websites are among the best way to find opportunities, followed by social media, networking and talking to professors.

Tips & Tricks

Leverage Your Brand

Build audience-specific content that inspires graduates and makes a positive first impression.

Go Viral

Showcase your employer brand through employee experiences on your corporate site and social media. Campus talent and young graduates want to work for employers that have a strong culture and brand.

Maximize Your Career Site

Offer a window into what it's like to work at your organization, from culture to available job openings and beyond.

Make It Mobile

Optimize all web content so that it's easily accessible on the go.

STUDENT UNION

A strong employer brand can reduce the cost per hire by as much as 50% and a negative reputation can cost a company as much as 10% more per hire.

Glassdoor, Statistical Reference Guide for Recruiters, 2021

Job search activity on social media is limited to a few top sites including LinkedIn, school specific networks, Facebook and YouTube.

AfterCollege, Student Insight Survey, 2020

Tips & Tricks

Go Social

Use social media to promote events, microsites and targeted information.

Build Networks

Connect students with alumni employed by your organization through ambassadors programs. To further expand your reach on campus, create relationships with the faculty and academic departments who influence the students you're trying to attract.

Embed for Engagement

Easily capture candidates by embedding your career site on social media pages. Because students use job boards to apply for jobs and research opportunities, consider including your jobs on your website and on job boards.

Cultivate the Right Content

Create student-friendly, mobile-optimized, and branded content ripe for the sharing.

NACE, Job Outlook 2022 Spring Update, 2022

Tips & Tricks

Looking for interns?

Start early — employers begin the recruitment process for interns eight and a half months prior to the start date and seven months prior for co-ops.

NACE, Internship & Co-op Survey Report, 2021

Offer Feedback

Give interns performance reviews and feedback — this will give them a better idea of the expectations and culture of the company.

Stay in Touch

Nurture talent for later opportunities by regularly checking in with silver medalists and previous interns.
